Ms. Jestina Mukoko, Executive Director of the Zimbabwe Peace Project (ZPP)

On the constitutional process:

I would want to appeal to Zimbabwean women to take advantage of the constitution-making process. To input their views because this is going to become the law of the land. Their views need to be heard. It is important that they are not threatened and harassed in terms of accepting what some people would want to see in the constitution. But I think they need to confirm what they want to see in the constitution and make sure that it appears in the constitution because that way their rights are going to be protected by the supreme law.
